Free Press vs. Fair trial

Discussed by Media & Legal Giants

Free Press vs. Fair Trial: Does the media go too far in coverage of criminal matters, thus prejudicing the rights of the accused? Do deadlines compromise careful reporting? A distinguished panel of television personalities, attorneys, and journalists attended an informative panel discussion and dinner in the Downtown Club atop the Public Ledger Building. The panel of media and legal giants aired the any complaints that arise over media coverage of trials. Seen above are some of the panelists (l.-r.): Rudolph W. Giuliani, Esq., former U.S. Attorney for Southern New York-Mr. Giuliani as a recent mayoral candidate missed becoming New York City mayor by 2%; Honorable Lisa A. Richette, Common Pleas Judge of Philadelphia; A. Charles Peruto, JR. Esq/. Well-known defense counsel; and moderator-producer Peter Levin Esq. Mr. Levin is Law Correspondent on WHSW-TV (Baltimore). He is founder of Arkins and Levin Law Centers, and senior partner in the national law firm of Jacoby and Meyers.
